

Our Discovery story

There is a season effect which tells reason why some bus arrive at stop late. Late stop is more obvious the winter....Why

We Also noticed that the number of Pass-up due to a full bus is affected by the average number of boarding. This shows a direct relationship with the number of transit demand and number of people who were not picked due to bus full capacity

Our Discovery story

There is a season effect which tells reason why some bus arrive at stop late. Late stop is more obvious the winter....Why

We Also noticed that the number of Pass-up due to a full bus is affected by the average number of boarding. This shows a direct relationship with the number of transit demand and number of people who were not picked due to bus full capacity

We are also to notice that there is a concetration of transit demand/Boarding on some routes than on the others, which makes pass up more pronounced in some routes

Our Discovery story

We Also noticed that the number of Pass-up due to a full bus is affected by the average number of boarding. This shows a direct relationship with the number of transit demand and number of people who were not picked due to bus full capacity

We are also to notice that there is a concetration of transit demand/Boarding on some routes than on the others, which makes pass up more pronounced in some routes

More pass ups occur during the winter season and we want to understand the reason why more passengers are left behind relates to season

Our Discovery story

We are also to notice that there is a conceteration of transit demand/Boarding on some routes than on the others, which makes pass up more pronounced in some routes

More pass ups occur during the winter season and we want to understand the reason why more passengers are left behind relates to season

This shows the trend of pass-ups over the years which significantly reduced during covid-19. This was because of the lock down and less people using the Transit

Our Discovery story

More pass ups occur during the winter season and we want to understand the reason why more passengers are left behind relates to season

This shows the trend of pass-ups over the years which significantly reduced during covid-19. This was because of the lock down and less people using the Transit

Boarding Demand affects the passups. However it is important to know what affects boarding Demand

1. Time of Day affects the transit boarding demand. Day time have more demand and night time is less busy
2. Season also affects boarding demand with lowest demand in summer. This is because in summer people walk..

Our Discovery story

This shows the trend of pass-ups over the years which significantly reduced during covid-19. This was because of the lock down and less people using the Transit

Boarding Demand affects the passups. However it is important to know what affects barding Demand

1. Time of Day affects the transit boarding demand. Day time have more demand and night time is less busy
2. Season also affects boarding demand with lowet demand in summer. This is because in summer people walk more and use the bycycle while the harsh condition makes people use the bus in the winter

Winter has the most demand for the transport system. This is why the it has the most average pass ups

Our Discovery story

Boarding Demand affects the passups. However it is important to know what affects barding Demand

1. Time of Day affects the transit boarding demand. Day time have more demand and night time is less busy

2. Season also affects boarding demand with lowet demand in summer. This is because in summer people walk more and use the bycycle while the harsh condition makes people use the bus in the winter

Winter has the most demand for the transport system. This is why the it has the most average pass ups

